A Traveler's Diary

Editor's Note: This past summer Rabbi and Mrs. Lincoln led a small group of congregants and friends to the Soviet Union. In a two part series, the Bulletin is pleased to share some of Rabbi Lincoln's impressions of this trip. Here is Part I.

The changes are amazing, almost beyond belief. My last visit to the Soviet Union took place some 27 years ago. It was not easy then: meetings in hotel lobbies were dangerous; invitations to apartments were impossible, but now....

We flew to Moscow and it did not take long to realize that I was in another world from the world of 1963. Awaiting luggage, pushing through immigration, former Soviet citizens with Israeli (!) passports were coming to the Soviet Union to visit family and friends. We had no problems either with our prayer books, booklets, pamphlets and tracts, in Hebrew and Russian, just the normal chaos of finding suitcases in a hectic airport atmosphere.

Moscow does not have the Jewish appeal of a Kishinev or a Vilna, but the two minyanim each weekday morning in the main Synagogue are the times to make contact with the 'locals'. Most impressive was the main Moscow Yeshiva, the former summer home of the Mayor of Moscow, situated in the nearby countryside. At the time of our visit, Rabbi Moshe Tendler of Yeshiva University (New York) was teaching 11-12 young men in Ivrit. One of the teachers told us that the Soviet government considers the Yeshiva to be part of the university system and pays for the students!!

F. Y. I.

The following statement was issued by participants in the Catholic-Jewish Scholars Dialogue sponsored by the Archdiocese of Chicago and the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago/Chicago Board of Rabbis, and reprinted in the BULLETIN as a thoughtful and sensitive statement on the Carmelite Convent at Auschwitz.

As Catholic and Jewish academicians, administrators and religious leaders in the Chicago area, we have met regularly for several years in an attempt to improve mutual understanding, enhance intergroup solidarity within the context of our respective spiritual commitments and comprehend and respect more fully the differences in the nature of our faith communities. The level of mutual understanding and trust we have reached moves us to speak out together at this moment on a controversial issue which is creating regrettable tensions in Catholic-Jewish relations, namely, the Carmelite Convent at Auschwitz.

Clearly, this is a highly sensitive matter. Hence we believe it is appropriate and important that discussions regarding the disposition of the Auschwitz site take into account the different perspectives which Jews and Catholics bring to the matter.

For Jews, the very word Auschwitz resonates with ultimate significance. The largest of the death camps used by the Nazis in their deliberate genocide of the Jews, Auschwitz symbolizes all the barbarism and horrors of the Holocaust. It is the mass graveyard of a people whose civilization in Europe was destroyed by the Nazis. For Polish Catholics, the site also carries great meaning. It is the premier camp for the execution of Polish leaders during the Nazi effort to reduce the Polish nation to lasting servitude. In addition to having their own connections with the site, the two groups' religions call upon their adherents to remember those who have perished in different ways.

Attempting to be sensitive to these facts and nuances, we firmly support the agreement originally scheduled for implementation by February, 1989, according to which the Carmelite Convent should be moved from its present location at Auschwitz to outside the camp site. We note that when the agreement was reached in February, 1987 only one of the four Catholic representatives was Polish and that there had been no consultation with people on the scene nor with the Carmelite Order. We also recognize that some delays in the implementation of the agreement may well have been inevitable. Yet we find it deeply regrettable that no substantial progress toward fulfillment of the agreement is as yet visible. This has produced intense tensions and frustrations that have even led to illegal entry onto what Catholics regard as sacred space and apparently tolerated physical attacks on demonstrators. With the statements of Cardinal Macharski and Cardinal Decourtray of Lyon we seem to have reached a new moment.

The controversy threatens to engulf constructive work toward Christian-Jewish reconciliation throughout the world. While we recognize Auschwitz as a most important symbol for both the Jewish and Polish communities in their respective ways and understand why each community feels so strongly about the site, we believe it would be a tragedy of immense proportions for both the Catholic Church and the Jewish People if the current controversy were allowed to destroy nearly a quarter century of productive contacts between Catholics and Jews.

Primarily, we urge that the necessary steps be taken to expedite the movement of the convent from the camp site. And we deem it imperative for leaders in both faith communities to take immediate, positive steps to defuse some of the present tensions and rebuild confidence. Among these steps ought to be a serious effort from the Catholic community to help its members better understand the history of the Holocaust and the unique pain evoked in Jews by Auschwitz, as well as Jewish attitudes regarding proper ways of memorializing the dead. Similarly, there ought to be a concomitant effort from the Jewish community to help its members better understand the painful significance of Auschwitz for the Polish nation, as well as the injustice of attaching the collective label of anti-semitism on the whole of the Polish people.

Finally, we remain convinced that forthright dialogue between people who convey mutual respect for one another is crucial for resolving this controversy and for conducting Christian-Jewish relations generally. We remain equally convinced that our mandate for this comes first and foremost from the special bonding between Jews and Catholics that has become a growing reality....

Rabbis are coming from Israel and the USA to teach. It should be mentioned that there is also a Lubavitcher Yeshiva in Moscow which we did not have time to visit....

Early on a Friday morning we flew to Kishinev, the capital of the Moldavian S.S.R. Formerly Romanian territory between World War I and World War II, the city still has about 40,000 Jews living in it. It is difficult to describe the excitement and ferment taking place in this part of the Soviet Union. For the Jewish community, new opportunities are opening up. Some 500 people, mostly youngsters, are studying and learning about Judaism in special classes. The delightful Synagogue was full of activity. The elderly shochet has a local young man who is learning the profession and who also studies in the Moscow Lubavitcher Yeshiva. Incidentally, this handsome boy, who speaks Yiddish and Hebrew as well as excellent English, was recently released from military service, having completed his tour of duty just like the rest of the population.

On Sunday morning other boys came to services and wore tefillin. But everyone also spoke of the anti-semitism always present beneath the surface. A recent incident, an Orthodox teacher was beaten on his way to class, unsettled but did not surprise the community.

Dinner in the Intourist Hotel was a three hour affair with a dance band, dancing, plenty of vodka and little food. The numerous local singles and young marrieds seemed to be having a great time. The band played Hava Nagila and we all joined in. It then became apparent that the 'locals' were Jews. They all spoke some Yiddish and it was very moving to learn of their hopes and dreams.

One day was spent traveling to Odessa, via Bendery and Tiraspol, all towns with Jews still living in them. In Odessa we did visit the Synagogue and speak to some of the people there, a rather sad experience.

On Shabbat afternoon in Kishinev, my wife and I went for a walk and witnessed an astonishing scene. Hundred of demonstrators were shouting, waving Romanian flags, displaying placards in Latin, rather than in Cyrillic, lettering. The police stood idly by and we could not understand too much of what was being demanded. The news in our own newspapers here in the United States now explain what was, and is, happening there. What it all means for the Jews, however, is uncertain.

Barbara Sassoon

Barbara Sassoon is a member of the Board of Trustees, a member of the School Board and the Committee charged with reviewing the By-Laws of the Synagogue.

The Sassoon family joined Park Avenue Synagogue in 1978 and quickly became immersed in Synagogue life. A past president and Treasurer of Parents Association, Barbara continues her association with the work of Parents Association by co-chairing the annual Book Fair. There are few members of the congregation who do not remember the Medieval Festival and Feast of which she was the co-chairperson. And she and her husband, Andre, co-chaired a memorable New Members Reception at the synagogue several years ago.

Raised in Merion, Pennsylvania, Barbara graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with honors, attended graduate school at Tyler Art School and earned a Masters degree in Secondary Education from Temple University.

Barbara was involved with the formation of ELEM, Youth in Distress, an organization that attempts to rehabilitate and integrate delinquent Israeli youth by moving them out of crowded courts and troubled homes into community hostels where, helped by caring staff, they learn to help themselves. A member of ELEM Executive Board, she has served as Benefit Chairperson for the past 7 years and has edited their newsletter. She is especially proud of the fact that she was instrumental in obtaining computers and special software geared to meet the needs of these troubled youth.

She is also a member of the Citizens Committee for Children, a children's advocacy group, where she serves on the Community Leadership Course Committee, a committee which helps to educate and train community leaders in the problems of New York City youth. She also edits the CCC newsletter.

Her love of nature translates into her involvement as an officer of the American Gloxinia and Gesneriad Society.

Much involved with the schools her three children attend, Barbara has chaired many committees and events at those schools. Her sons, Daniel and Gabriel, celebrated their B'nai Mitzvah with the congregation and her daughter, Sabrina, looks forward to the day of her Bat Mitzvah two years hence.

Andrew Fier

In the thirty years that Andy Fier and his wife, Phyllis, have been members of Park Avenue Synagogue, Andy has repeatedly shown his love, support and involvement in the synagogue and in Jewish communal life.

He served as the first president of the Mr. and Mrs. Club (now renamed and reconstituted as the Couples Club) and was the co-chairman of the first two Art Shows sponsored by the Mr. and Mrs. Club.

He has chaired the Federation appeal at the synagogue and has represented Park Avenue Synagogue at the Commission on Synagogue Relations of Federation. He has also served as an officer of Federation and sits on its Board of Trustees.

He was the first chairman of the Commission of Early Childhood Education of the Board of Jewish Education and is a member of the Board of the Jewish Child Care Association. He is a former president of the Hebrew Institute for the Deaf and has served as Chairman of industry fundraising for the past 20 years for UJA/Federation.

At present, Andy is a member of the Board of Trustees and serves as the Associate Treasurer of the congregation. He was the chairman of the Search Committee last year charged with "finding" our Assistant Rabbi, Philip Graubart.

The owner and manager of the Plaza Memorial Chapel, Andy has served his profession and its organizations and has been recognized for his outstanding contributions to the industry by its members. He has also been recognized and received awards from UJA/Federation and the Yeshiva University.

The Fiers have two daughters, Amy and Lisa.

Concert At Synagogue By Shinonome Chorus November 9

The congregation and community are in for a rare treat when the members of the Shinonome Chorus from Beit Shalom in Kyoto, Japan present a program of songs—in Japanese and in Hebrew (!)—at Park Avenue Synagogue, Thursday, November 9 at 8 p.m.

The choir is part of a movement in Japan known as Japan's Christian Friends of Israel. The movement was founded in 1938 by the Rev. Takeji Otsuki who foresaw the renewal of Jewish sovereignty. Ten years before the establishment of the State of Israel a Japanese cleric was praying for the redemption of the Jewish people in their own land. His son, Masaru, founded the Choir in 1970 and has organized international concert tours to Europe, the United States and Israel.

This performance by the Shinonome Chorus at Park Avenue Synagogue is part of a 7 city tour of the United States. This is a unique and gifted group of young men and women whose performances have been hailed wherever they have performed.

If there are members of the congregation who would like to offer home hospitality to individual members of the group, please inform Cantor Lefkowitz at the synagogue.
